HELLO CENTRAL?

But the Answer Did Not Come for Hours.

Marchal Brown Stopped Sunday Work. Likewise the Telephones.

Shall the teleprone lines be constructed on Sunday? Marshal Brown said not, and arrested men yesterday. while at work.

For months past the Superintendent of the Mutual Telephones Company has been engaged in constructing new lines on the principal streets in the city. In order that much of the induction, now so noticeable might be avoided. Mr. Gillespie decided to string the wires through a cable. This is a liend pipe, and measures nearly two inches in di-ameter and contains about 100 wires.

This cubic breaks at intervals of about 150 or 200 feet, and at these points the wires have to be connected. it is rather a difficult job, and must be lane when the lines are not busy, and by men who theroughly understand their business. For the past three Sun days men have been at work on King street connecting these lines, and have not been interfered with but vestering at noon Charlie Reeves and Charlie Johnson, who were at work on the corner of Nuuann and King street, eers told to stop work or be arrested. As leaving the work unfinished mean a loss to the company of about $250 the men kept on working for a little while, and were then taken to the station house and locked up for violating Connecticut Blue Law 47, which prohibits a man from kissing his wife or repairing telephone lines on the Sab-

Superintendent Gillespie, was noti fied, and after a consultation with Wil-liam G. Irwin, president of the company, bailed them out and set them a work artis. The men were arrested a second time, then he took the operators. Spencer and Jackson, who were at work on the board in the telephone office, and assigned them to the duty of connecting the wires. In the meantime, the other two men were released on hell. When Spencer and Jackson were taken from the operating room, all the telephone service ceased throughout the city, and from I to 3 p. m. more "Helle Centrals," and case words passed over the wires than is recorded m the history of the company

After allowing the wires to remain idle for two hours, the men were permitted to return to work after being miled out. In the event of a fite breakout or the organt necessity for a physician during that time, communipicht that gentleman said:

"Committees regarding the prieshess service come in every day, and in trythe number of complaints may be ye. Skine Ensenada. Newcastle.... Apr 25 duced, my men are locked up. I do not work them on Similar because I want to but because of onessety. There are ery few men who understand connect work may be done as enickly as posin San Provinces where one as vertisement would bring a car-load of H. B. M. S. Wild Swan, Macvey Napler, stent men, there would be no excust for this Sunday work, but here the lons are different

"When the work of connecting a section of inble begins, it cannot be stoppell until all the wires are finished: for that reason I balled the men out and put them to work. They were arrested again, and I assigned the Telephone Exching boys to the task, and they were agrested. After two hours of sience the Marshal gave his consent to have the work go on. He says the law forbids any new work being done, but that repairs may be made without in-This work we are doing is not to be classed with new work. for we are simply replacing the old vires. In the matter of labor, though do not see where the distinction is The telephone is a necessity here, and to stop the service for two hours is equal to stoppoing the mails in the United States."
